Federal Way chiropractor's license suspended on sexual misconduct charges

Chiropractor charged with touching patient's genitals and altering records

OLYMPIA — The license of chiropractor Greg Summers (CHIR.00034210) of Federal Way has been immediately suspended on charges of sexual contact with three female patients.

Charges by the Department of Health and the Chiropractic Quality Assurance Commission say Summers touched patients inappropriately, inserting his fingers in the vaginas of two patients. The allegations say he claimed the patients would benefit from intravaginal massage. He's also charged with changing the medical records of another patient after she filed a complaint against him reporting he touched her breasts inappropriately during treatment.

Summers can't practice in Washington until the charges are resolved. He has 20 days to respond to the charges and to ask for a hearing.

The documents can be seen online by clicking "Look up a health care provider" on the Department of Health website; copies can be requested by calling 360-236-4700. That's also the number to call to file complaints against health care providers in Washington.

The Department of Health and Chiropractic Quality Assurance Commission protect and promote public health, safety, and welfare in Washington by regulating the competency and quality of health care providers.
